

The level of stress we experience is directly proportional to the attachment we have to the outcome / our expectation

